

STANZA.
Then earth is full of beauty,
And hearts are full of bliss;
And the radiant worlds above me
Look no lovelier than this.
I seem to live and move,
Then in haunted palace
While near and round about me
Gathering beings whom I love.

One comes with stately presence,
To linger at my side;
Whispering ever low and fondly,
Like a lover to his bride.
And one, a gentle maiden,
With face serenely fair,
Bends on me looks as smiling
As sister-angels wear.

Two others, little fairies
Most beautiful and bright,
In this enchanted palace
Wake echoes of delight;
Their childish hearts and voices
Are ever tuned to glee;
And a name most sweet, most holy,
They both bestow on me.

EXCERPTS.

When is a lover like a tailor?—When he presses his suit.

Did any one ever see the umbrella again which he had lent for just 'five minutes'?

An excuse is worse and more terrible than a lie; for an excuse is a lie guarded.—Pope.

Why is anything reconsidered accounted 'profitable'?—Because it is considered a gain.

There is no objection to bruits in a house, so that they only emanate from the kitchen.

A truly grateful heart may not be able to tell its gratitude, but it can feel, and love, and act.

It may sound like a paradox, yet the breaking of both an army's wings is a pretty sure way to make it fly.

The reason why whales frequent the Arctic seas is probably because they supply the 'northern lights' with oil.

'That's the rock on which we split,' said Charley to his wife when she asked him to rock the cradle.

How is it that the trees can put on a new dress without opening their trunks?—Because they leave out their summer clothing.

The Funambulist who tried to balance the North Pole, got seriously cut by the axes of the earth.

It is an economical reflection that when garments are too short, the difficulty may be remedied by wearing them longer.

Mrs. Partington asks, very indignantly, if the bills before Parliament are not counterfeits, why should there be such a difficulty in passing them?

VETERANS AND VOLUNTEERS.—'I don't dread the enemy,' said an old soldier, 'half as much as our brave volunteers who carry their rifles in so dangerous a manner.'

A person recently returned from the Civil Service Commissioners, England, in reply to a question of where he had been, replied, 'I have been after an appointment, and got the refusal of it.'

Mrs. Partington desires to know why the captain of a vessel can't keep a memorandum of the weight of his anchor, instead of weighing it every time he leaves port.

A master bade his servant go and see what time the sun-dial indicated. 'Why, sir,' expostulated the servant, 'it is night.'—'What does that matter? Take a candle.'

'O, my dear, how came you yet?' inquired an affectionate mother of her son.—'Why, ma, one of the boys said I darsent jump into the pond, and by jingo, I tell you I aint to be dared!'

A country newspaper thus describes the effects of the recent thunder-storm:—'It shattered mountains, tore up oaks by the roots, dismantled churches, laid homesteads waste, and overturned a haystack.'

An astronomer, gazing at the moon, fell into a pond. 'Had you looked into the water,' said a countryman to him, 'you might have seen the moon; but by gazing on the moon, you could never have seen the pond.'

'Who is that lovely girl?' said the witty Lord Norbury, in company with his friend, Counsellor Grant. 'Miss Glass,' replied Grant. 'I should often be intoxicated, could I place such a glass to my lips,' said Norbury.

'Do you know whose remains those are?' asked a gentleman of a Ragged-school pupil, as the Picton cortege was passing along the Strand, London, to St. Paul's. 'Yes, sir,' replied the lad, 'those of a general pickt up at Waterloo.'

Next to the wonder how the milk got into the cocoa-nut, came George the Third's marvel how the apple got into the dumpling. 'This has been succeeded by the question why white ashes should come from coal, when coals are so deuced black.'

A 'wise man of Gotham' made his servant sleep in a chamber adjoining his own. He cried out to him on one occasion, 'George, am I asleep?'—'Yes, sir,' replied the conscientious George.—'Ah, good!'

In a late trial for the amount of a tailor's bill, it appeared that the clothes supplied did not fit the defendant. 'Then,' observed the judge, 'we must proceed according to the lez tailororum, and the plaintiff must be nonsuited.'

Mr. Wedderburn, afterwards Lord Loughborough, was once asked whether he really delivered, in the House of Commons, a speech which the newspapers ascribed to him? 'Why, to be sure,' said he; 'there are many things in that speech which I did say, and there are more which I wish I had said.'

A young fellow, the son of an eminent dancing-master, applying to a friend as to what trade or profession it would be best for him to pursue, was answered, 'I think you cannot do better than follow the steps of your father.'

'Madam, has your piano an Eolina attachment?' asked Stubbs, the other night, of the wife of a man who appeared to live fully up to, if not beyond his means. 'Hush!' whispered Stiggins in his ear; 'it has a sheriff's attachment.' Stubbs dropped the subject.

A doctor ordered one of his patients to drink flower of sulphur and water: the patient expressed his disgust by significant grimaces. 'It is only the first glass that is hard to drink,' said the doctor. 'Then,' rejoined the invalid, 'I will begin with the second.'

A Sunday-school teacher, deploring the lack of attendants on his ministrations, appealed to the present. 'What can I do,' said he, 'to get the boys and girls here?—I know,' said one of the 'urchins'. 'What is it?'—'Give 'em all sixpence apiece.'

A learned lord, speaking of the salary attached to a rumored appointment to a new judgeship, said it was all moonshine. Lord Lyndhurst, in his dry sarcastic way, remarked, 'May be so, but I have a strong notion that, moonshine though it be, you would like to see the first quarter of it.'

It may seem a paradox, but it is nevertheless the truth, that, hit a man upon whatever part of the body you will, the blow is sure to go against his stomach.
